A computer-implemented method for managing an investigation case comprising receiving a case from a client, assigning an investigator to the case; and managing the case on behalf of the client and the investigator by a case manager.

10